

REDUCE CHARGES AGAINST WOMEN IN STRIKE TRIAL

Southern Chivalry Again Comes to Front—Outside Jury Sought

BY LEMUEL F. PARTON Copyright, 1929, by Cons. Press

Gastonia, N. C.—Southern chivalry, facing the issue between the letter of the law and difference to womanhood, runs true to form.

As court resumed Tuesday, there was apparently little doubt that a jury will be impaneled from the adjoining country of Mecklenberg, somewhat less agitated by the bitterness which has kept the city at high tension, since the arrival of the textile union organizers.

The trial is being held in a modern, well lighted and spacious courtroom, with little of the traditional south in view, except two magnolia trees, flanking the court house steps and a statue of a confederate soldier on a tall shaft.

Judge M. V. Barnhill of the eastern judicial district of North Carolina is a lean, precise, rather youngish man with penetrating eyes and an easy going manner.

Solicitor Carpenter, who in the north would be called the district attorney, wears a rumpled white linen suit, with a purple sash in the buttonhole. He is entirely too courteous to fit into the picture of a ruthless prosecutor.

"If he starts quoting scripture, I'll meet him, verse for verse and line for line," said Mr. Jimison, who can also match Mr. Hoey on hair, although he is still black.

"None like initiation" When the sixteen separate indictments were read by Mr. Carpenter, with Mr. Jimison answering for the defendants, the impression grew that this was not a murder trial, but rather a lodge initiation or a graduation, each defendant stood and raised his right hand.

"May God send you true deliverance," returned Mr. Carpenter. When this liturgical interchange had been finished, the defense began its long plea for a change of venue.

that an alert defense would put her well to the front in answering the conspiracy charge.

HUNTS WORK, WIFE ILL, LEARNS SON DROWNED AT N. CAROLINA HOME

Washington—(P)—Out of work, broke, his wife ill and his six-year-old boy in need, Walter Ross, 35-year-old Statesville, N. C., carpenter, borrowed money for gasoline and drove his small car to Washington.

He had 6 cents left when he arrived, but parked his car and grimly trudged the streets all day looking for work. At nightfall, weak, and worried, he couldn't find his car.

That was the end of Ross' brave struggle. The dogged courage which had carried him through the day collapsed. Sobbing, he had to admit that he had only 6 cents and needed more help.

"When the sixteen separate indictments were read by Mr. Carpenter, with Mr. Jimison answering for the defendants, the impression grew that this was not a murder trial, but rather a lodge initiation or a graduation, each defendant stood and raised his right hand.

A. B. C. LOOKS TO NATIONAL CHAIN BY FIRST OF YEAR

Columbia Broadcasting System, in Meantime, Pushes Westward

BY ROBERT MACK Copyright, 1929, by Cons. Press

Washington.—As the American Broadcasting company, the newest of the radio chains, pushed eastward in its effort to align a nationwide network by next fall, the Columbia Broadcasting system is plowing to the west for a new group of stations to supplant the former company's cluster when it leaves the Columbia network.

Next October the A. B. C. stations on the Pacific coast, five in number, terminate their contracts with Columbia as its Pacific coast outlet. They will become the nucleus of the new chain, and, in fact, now are broadcasting "A. B. C." programs when not hooked up with the Columbia system.

Recently A. B. C. announced it had concluded arrangements with six stations in the middlewest, WJL at St. Louis, WIBO Chicago, WRHM Minneapolis, WOO Kansas City, KFAB Lincoln, Neb., and KTNM Muscatine Iowa, to become affiliated with its chain.

SEEEKS NATIONAL CHAIN A. B. C. hopes to have a national chain comparable to the other major networks by the first of next year.

and orchestras as well as other talent have flocked to the coast for engagements in "talkie" production are available, they say.

Columbia officials anticipate no difficulty in replacing the Linden stations on the coast, and even are hopeful of adding to the number of western clients. There will be no hitch in Columbia's program service to the western states, it was stated, when the new network becomes an independent competitor of the existing national chains.

But the primary source of program material will be from the Pacific coast. Western programs are promised the listening public on an unprecedented scale. The "talkie" stars in Hollywood, and the famous bands

Russian Embassy Still Empty At U. S. Capital

Washington—(P)—While much is being said about Nicholas II's hidden millions in the United States and conflicting claims of his relatives and the Soviet government, the last remaining visible property purchased in this country in the czar's name the former Russian embassy, stands forlorn in seven years' dust, uninhabited and inviolate.

Officials of the state department said today that the 39-room mansion, home of the czar's accredited representatives from 1913 to 1922, is being held in custody by former financial Attaché Ughet. Millions of dollars in the form of securities of various kinds, has been liquidated and the proceeds applied to the debt of the last provisional government, but the old embassy, it was said, will be held until it can be turned over to the next Russian government recognized by the United States.

The embassy has stood uninhabited and unfurnished since 1922, when Ambassador Boris Bakhmeteff withdrew. Its furnishings have been placed in storage and the most "precious" thing it contains now, its caretaker said today, is a complete file of the diplomatic negotiations between the czarist government's representatives here and other nations. The files are packed away in trunks in the basement.

Decade, the white stone mansion stands next to the Racquet club far from the White House, its entrances barred and even the approaches to the spacious lawns protected against intrusion with barbed wire. The land alone is valued at several hundred thousand dollars, and the house at much more. The place is pointed out to tourists, but no sightseer enters.

SWIMMING SCHEDULE AT "Y" UNCHANGED

No change in the swimming schedule will be made at the Y. M. C. A., according to Robert Mitchell, a "Y" boys' work secretary. Many boys thought that because Camp Onaway is in session the swims would be discontinued.

There will be swimming every day except Saturday and Sunday at 3:30, 4:30 and 6:45. On Saturdays the swim will be at 10 o'clock. The beginner's swimming class will be held at the regular time, on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 3 to 4 o'clock.

CONDUCT DOG SHOW AT STATE FAIR THIS YEAR

MILWAUKEE—(P)—For the first time in its history, the Wisconsin state fair will conduct a dog show during its exposition, Aug. 26-31. The sharp bark of the canine will mingle with the more guttural sounds uttered by pure-bred cattle, sheep and swine at the livestock showings.

The dog show will be a licensed American kennel club show, and will be conducted under the auspices of the Wisconsin kennel club. Trophies will be awarded winners in the variety groups, and cash prizes divided among winning animals in the various classes.
